first issue of the

CORRIC

Dear Mother and Dad,

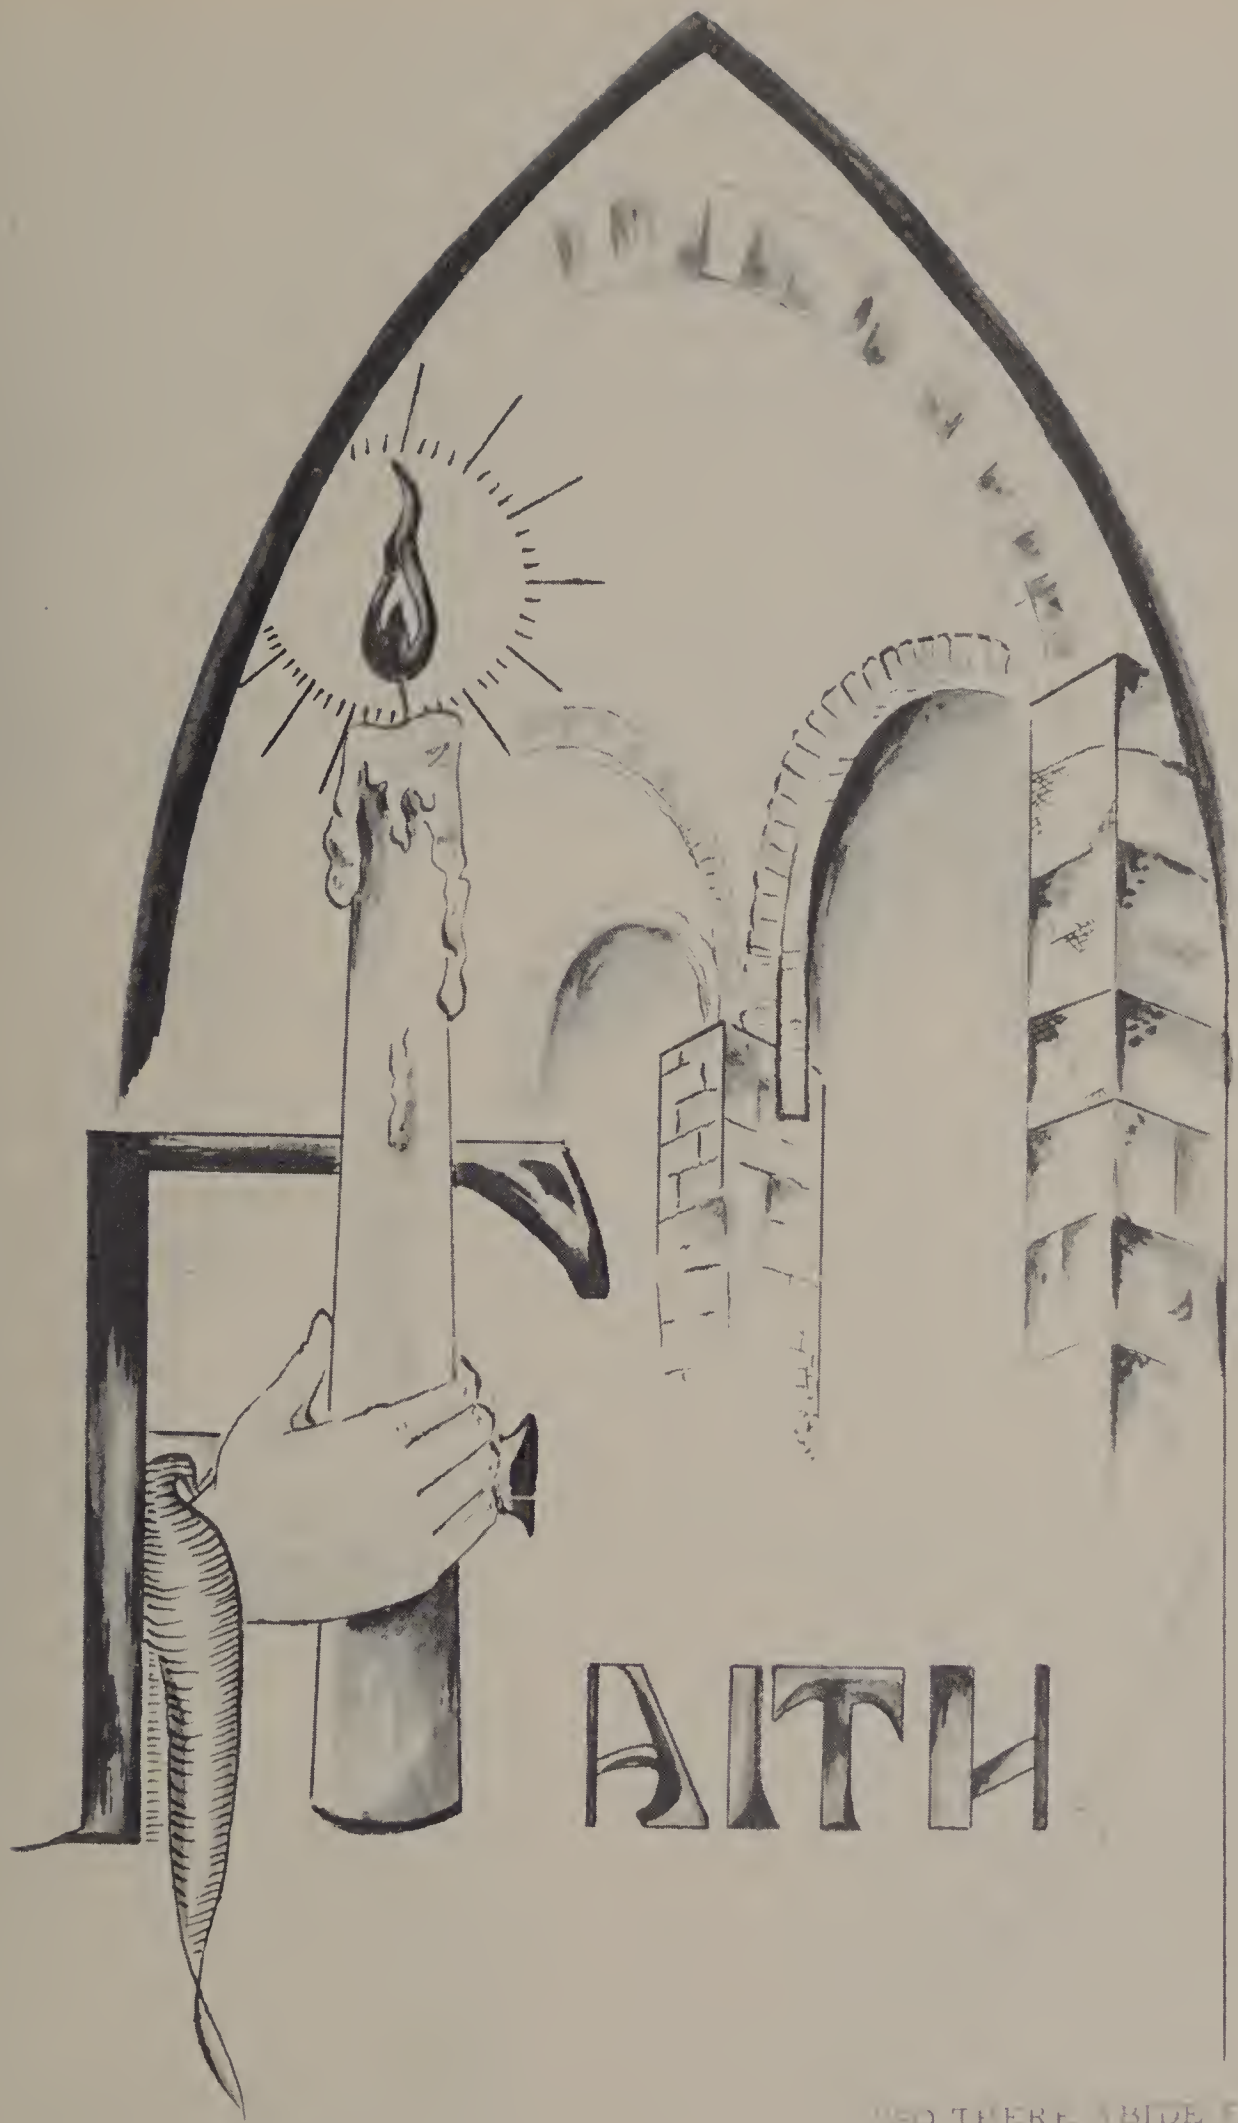

Some few years ago a loving and kind Providence transcended time and space to generate a love that made possible the nicest thing that ever happened to me. I became your baby girl.

During those first years I captured your hearts as you so often told me, but I also know I demanded hours of attention, days and months of vigilant care about which you never bothered to tell me. All during the years that followed you gave and did not count the cost, you sacrificed and did not mind the hurt, and did so many little and big things and did not seek reward.

It is graduation! Little wonder that I stumble about for some way to let you know how sincerely and deeply I want to thank you. You planted the seed of life within my heart and soul and entrusted me to Sacred Heart. Here in the school of your choice and mine I explored the richness of deep faith. shared in the promise of challenging hope, and tried to grow in the warmth and radiance of divine charity.

The academic achievements of the past four years now make possible the closing of another chapter in our lives. Mother and Dad, I gratefully and proudly accept my diploma and yours.

Your loving daughter.

FAITH

SO THERE ABIDE FAITH

SISTER M. IRENAEA

MOTHER M. THARSILLA

My dear Graduates,

You are the first group to be called "Graduates of Sacred Heart, Kingston." The title is both a privilege and a responsibility. It is a privilege because you have been identified with your school long enough to grasp its philosophy, its aim, and its achievements. Most of you have come here to the new building after spending some years in the elementary school in Plymouth; and those of you who joined the class along the way, have taken on the customs, ideals, and the spirit of the school. It is a responsibility, for you and your actions will influence all the graduates that follow you. All the students of Sacred Heart will look up to you and revere your memory if you carry into the college of your choice the high principles of your Catholic Faith and portray in your every thought, word, and action the teaching of Christ. These teachings have been made known to you, not in a superficial, mechanical way, but in a practical everyday form, applying them to the varied vicissitudes that accompany Youth through life, to the maturity you will attain in a short span of years. You can, if you will, be an inspiration to the boys and girls that will walk down the corridors of this school into a world that challenges them.

But what qualities and virtues in you, our first graduates, will be the source of the inspiration you will give to the underclassmen? First, your earnest conviction that God's grace, SANCTIFYING GRACE, makes you a real Christian, and that you must firmly hold fast to that divine life of your soul if you wish to be close to God, should make you firm and adamant in a world that speaks sentimentally of religion and virtue while practicing none of it. Your word should be your bond - your Catholicity your pledge. Holy Mass, the faithful reception of the sacraments frequently, abstinence on Fridays and Fast-days, association with good, virtuous companions will tell the public whether or not you are the product of a good Catholic school. Yours is the seed-time. Plant well for your future and ours. Sacred Heart School will reap what you sow. Be staunch and faithful to God, school, and country - real Trail Blazers for Sacred Heart.

God keep you and bless you always a group dear to His Heart. In that Divine Heart may you find your life's work here, and eternal happiness hereafter.

Sincerely and affectionately,

Sister M. Irenaea

"SO THERE ABIDE FAITH, HOPE, AND CHARITY..."

Charity is the foundation of the spirit existing in the school. It is the bond between the faculty and the student body from which radiates the glow of accomplishment without pride, the thrill of victory without egotism, and the drive of ambition without ruthlessness. One's attitude toward fellow students, faculty members, and lawful superiors stems from Charity which, in using the powers of one's soul, generates beauty, truth, and goodness. The extra curricular program affords many opportunities for the expression of social grace in conformity with moral code.

The Student Council was formed to establish a means by which students learn the true practice of loyalty and fidelity complemented with an intelligent understanding of democracy. It presents an opportunity to those possessing initiative and leadership to develop their abilities and talents while still in their formative years. The high standards maintained by its members are reflected in all other school organizations. The Student Council governs in not the capacity of the authority resting in the faculty but with the harmonizing influence which enables the student body to cooperate for the common good.

Composed of representatives from the four high school classes with the Juniors and Seniors holding the most votes, the Student Council sponsors projects to aid and improve both school and community. Throughout the country such student governments have and are presenting to the public the views and achievements of those whom the future depends.

The National Honor Society was founded to give scholastic achievement its just distinction in secondary education. The qualifications of a candidate for membership in the Society are prominent traits of willing Service, beneficial Leadership, and an agreeable Character along with a scholarship average of eighty-five percent or better. His faculty, those who know him best, hold the deciding vote. Having been nominated by one teacher the votes of three additional faculty members are necessary for election.

The school and community projects sponsored by chapters of the National Honor Society cover a huge scope. The type of projects carried on are the result of a sincere desire to render service and a beneficial aid in discovering traits of initiative and resourcefulness while providing a method of developing potential leadership.

Forensic was introduced to Sacred Heart School because of the many benefits it affords the participants. The intellectual values provided by this activity are a confident speaking technique, knowledge of current problems, logical and deductive reasoning, and the ability to analyze a situation.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

The CORRIC, the official Yearbook of Sacred Heart High School was inaugurated into student activities this year, the year of the first graduating class. This achievement, more than just an annual publication, is the combined effort of the students' contributions. The staff is confident that these ideals have been realized in the first issue of the Corric.

The school newspaper, the SURF AND SPRAY was established at Sacred Heart High School in 1956. The aims of this medium are two-fold: to bind the entire student body in a bond of mutual interest and to encourage mature journalistic potentialities.

"Lift Thine Eyes," the Christmas Assembly presented by the seniors was an amusing sketch of an old ladies' home on Christmas eve portraying the true seasonal spirit. Besides providing entertainment for the whole high school it gave the seniors an opportunity to prove their dramatic ability.

One can find many cozy corners in Sacred Heart where these seniors can practice for assemblies and class plays.

Pat, Claire, Frances, and Maureen, responsible for the musical selections in most of the senior activities, rehearse their next number.

A choral group approves choice of background music for a dramatic production.

Dramatic tryouts absorb the attention of all eighteen seniors.

Many weeks of forensic preparation are necessary for Frank Alsheimer and Kate Gilmore in their roles in the 1955 Christmas choric.

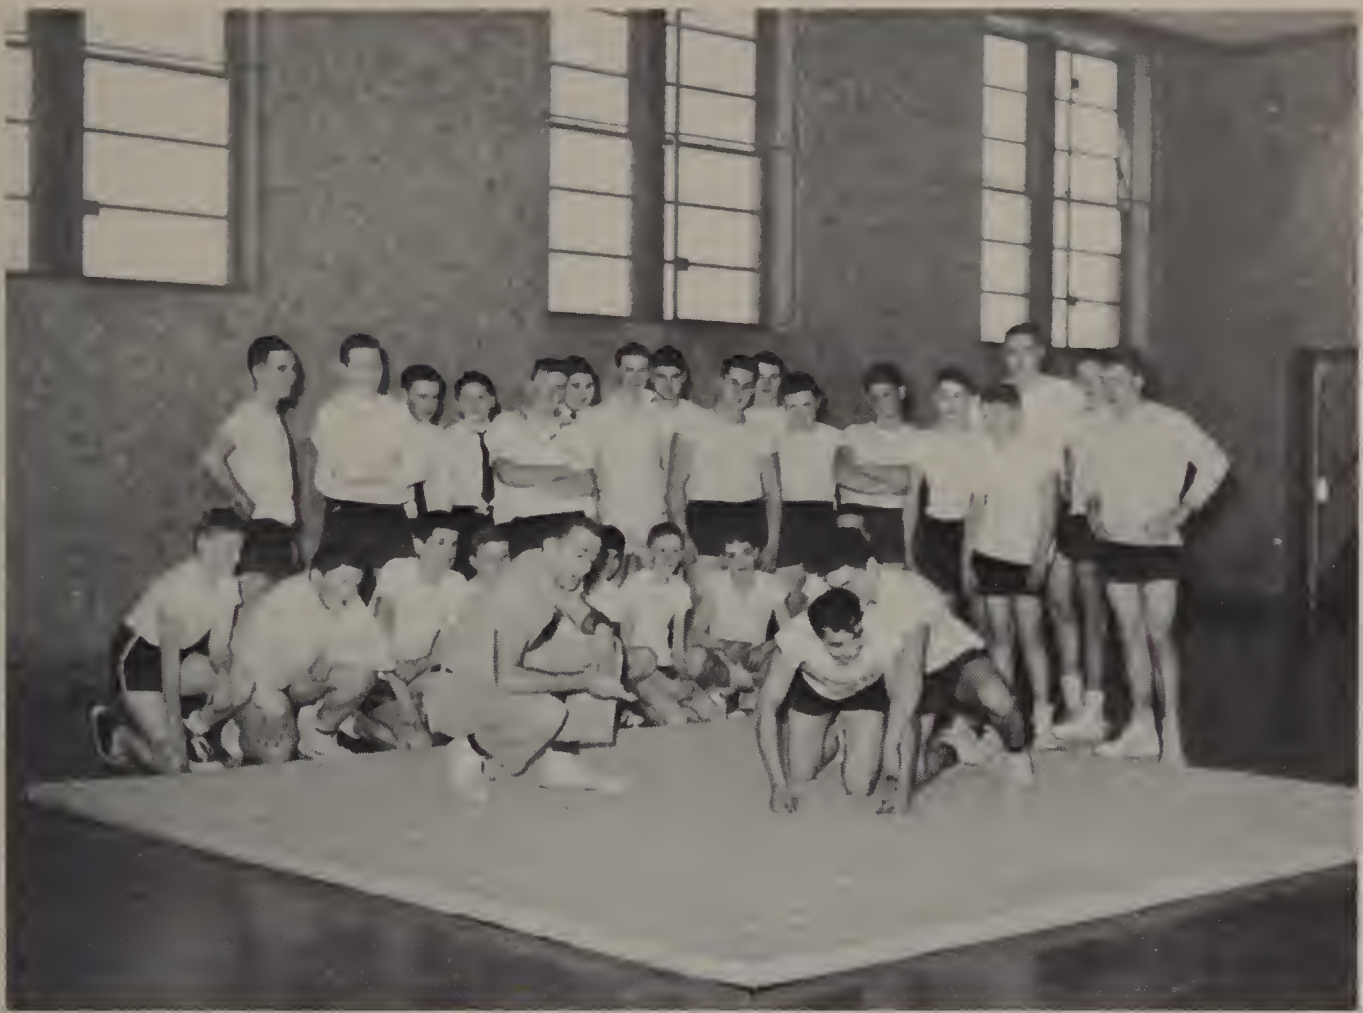

SPORTS

Sportsmanship, coordination, and the proper feeling of competition is derived from the enjoyment of active participation in sports. Besides offering a means of healthful exercise, sports serve as a means of enlivening the mind as well as the body. The greatest benefits gained from athletic activities are a deeper understanding of the opponents with whom we come in contact and the realization that it is not how well we do something, but the spirit in which we do it.

SEASONAL DIVERSIONS

From September to June one can find outdoor recreation buzzing somewhere on Sacred Heart's seven hundred fifty acres. Swimming, boating, and canoeing on Lake Providence in the summer and ice skating in many sheltered spots during the winter provide hours of thrilling fun. Friendship in the open, laughter floating through crisp air and the joy of competition after classes supplement the academic program and thereby create an integrated personality with challenge and opportunity for diversified activity.

Seniors take time out from a busy day's schedule to talk over the latest school events with Sister Paul Marie.

Willy, Frän, Maureen, and Joanne find fun with vim and vigor in this late December snowfall.

Boating and swimming, which head the list of spring activities at Sacred Heart, are enjoyed frequently by the resident students. The entire student body looks forward to annual outings at this favorite spot on Sacred Heart's many acres. In spring and in winter Lake Providence offers delightful recreation.

"Now," say these three skaters, "back to those assignments that stop our winter fun."
